

Prime suspect in Anand Niketan case shifts to Dubai

AHMEDABAD: It has been over a year since students of Anand Niketan School in Satellite and their parents have suffered the nightmare of being targeted by threatening emails and morphed photographs of female classmates.

While cops zeroed in on the prime suspect, a 17-year-old student, it is reliably learnt that his family has now moved to Dubai. Top sources in the state police said that after the grilling, where the teen even confessed to his crime, the juvenile shifted to Dubai where he is studying and spending time helping his billionaire father's business. "After we zeroed in on the boy, a Satellite resident whose father owns event management, currency and digital wallet businesses, the family moved him from Ahmedabad to Dubai in May. He was first sent to Singapore from where he went to Dubai," said a city police officer. He added, "The boy's father confirmed this to police recently, saying his entire family has moved to Dubai. His father, who keeps making trips to Ahmedabad, also met senior police officers on November 5 and informed them that he will soon sell off his property in the city and settle abroad." The saga began on September 9, 2020, when the school received the first email, threatening to cancel the mid-term exams if they did not want nude photographs of female students circulated. The school management canceled exams for Classes 8 to 12 which had been scheduled for end-September 2020. They then approached cybercrime police, seeking an inquiry into the issue, which was converted to an FIR on October 3, 2020.

On December 6, 2020, the perpetrator sent another email, demanding the cancellation of preliminary exams for Classes 10, 11, and 12. The email was sent at a time when the cybercrime police was struggling to trace the person behind the emails. The perpetrator had used the dark web to commit the crime and the case was one of the most complicated cybercrime cases Ahmedabad police faced till date. Investigators even roped in central and American investigative agencies. On March 31 this year, the perpetrator used a virtual telephone number to join a school meeting on Zoom and posted links to nude photographs of female students. This move revealed his hand. The cops realized that his real motive was to malign the two girls as one of them had rejected his advances and he blamed the other for influencing her. The cops also found a lead in the web searches on one of the devices they had collected from 120 students. "We used human intelligence to track him as he had been using the dark web, leaving no evidence of the crime," said a police officer. The cops cannot stop them from shifting as they have not held solid evidence of the boy's involvement and no offence has been registered against him so far. Meanwhile, someone hacked into the school's WhatsApp group in August and posted an indecent image of a student, demanding that the school cancel the Class 12 first term exams. "We found that the first suspect had not sent the message this time. We now have strong suspicions that another student learned the modus operandi of using the dark web and committed this offence," said a police officer. Cops believe the second juvenile was guided by the prime suspect, who is now in Dubai.

Ahmedabad: Wedding in air, couple die in water not believing kin

AHMEDABAD: Sabarmati Riverfront (East) police has found the bodies of a 21-year-old man and a 19-year-old woman, with their hands tied together, floating in the river near Shahpur. The cops near the bodies on Saturday evening. The cops said that the couple, Rakesh Dattania and Gungun Dapania, were residents of Shahpur and had committed suicide. The couple were in despair because they feared that their families would not allow them to live together, the cops said. On the other hand, their families say that they were willing to get them married and had been talking about their wedding after they went missing on November 10. A police officer said, "Rakesh and Gungun were in a relationship for about a year but their families were unaware of that. The officer added: "When they did reveal their relationship to their families, they encountered some resistance. The families apparently sought time to think about it." But the couple did not accept their families' approach and decided to flee from their homes. "They might have feared that their family members would punish them and they would be defamed in society," said the officer. "So they jumped into the river and committed suicide." Preliminary investigation suggests that the couple may have died about three days before their bodies were discovered. "They left their house on November 10 and on the same day they may have committed suicide by jumping into the river," said the officer.

Azaad to launch its 4th Original, Lovepanti

Ahmedabad, Produced by Mahesh Pandey Productions, Lovepanti will air at 8 PM, every Monday to Saturday, only on Azaad starting from 15th November. The promos are the talk of the town for their uniqueness and interesting character portrayals. The name is even more captivating - Lovepanti. And, it's on the newest channel on the block, India's First Hindi Rural Entertainment Channel, Azaad. Launching on 15th November 2021 at 8 PM, Lovepanti, is slated to be the most entertaining youth-centric drama on Indian television. The lead character, Arjun has been taught to live within parameters set by his father. Even his dreams have been tailored by his parents and he has accepted his life accordingly. The story of Lovepanti is about how the common boy rises to the occasion when he gets an idea that he is in love. Raised in an conformist Brahmin family, he falls in love with Ranjana, a progressive minded girl from a Thakur family. Expected to follow in his father's footsteps of becoming a practicing temple priest i.e., 'Pandit', Arjun has diligently followed all rules set by his family. But he only ends up breaking the biggest rule of them all; he gets an idea that he is in love and marry a girl of his choice, that too a girl from a Thakur family. Their 'so called' love affair comes out in the open in a dramatic turn of events. (19-8)

Woman umpires with difference soon

VADODARA: In a first, about 22 differently-abled women are being trained to become professional cricket umpires and scorers in the city. Once they complete the course, they will be eligible to offer their services in any cricket tournament. Apart from eight girls from Gujarat, the other participants are from Maharashtra, Orissa, Haryana, Punjab and Delhi. All 22 girls will undergo a six-day training from Monday in the city wherein they will be taught both theory and practical. They will have to appear for an exam to score at least 80 per cent to get the certificate. "We have been given level 1 Coaches Cricket Association (BCA) for training these girls," Niteshra Singh, chief coach and director (cricket operations), Divyraj Cricket Control Board of India (DCCBI) told TOI. "Once they pass the course, these women will be able to stand in as professional umpires and scorers in the cricket tournaments. We will ensure that they get to serve in the differently-abled cricket tournaments at state, national and international level," he said. "But my aim is to get the differently-abled umpires in mainstream cricket tournaments. This will not just give full-time employment to these women but also make cricket a more inclusive sport. I am in talks with some state cricket associations to give such umpires a chance. To start with, they can umpire or keep score in local tournaments," Singh, who is fondly called Munna in cricketing circles, said. "When these women start umpiring and scoring, they will get at least Rs 1,500 per day when the matches are played apart from train tickets for air-conditioned coaches. We will try to treat them at par with other umpires and scorers," Singh added. About two dozen differently-abled men too will be trained in umpiring and scoring at this camp.

Incusaze Closes 800 + Seats for Byju's in Ahmedabad & Lucknow

Ahmedabad, Enterprise managed workspace provider Incusaze today announced the closing of an 800+ seater deal with Byju's at their Ahmedabad & Lucknow centers. The transient nature of corporate HQs in the new world order has given rise to a more employee-friendly ecosystem. In addition, amidst the pandemic, organizations have increasingly recognized the power of city-based operations where employees can stay close to home and work from a managed workspace, ensuring high productivity and diminished costs. Talking about this deal, Sanjay Choudhary, Founder & CEO at Incusaze said, "Enterprises like Byju's have a diversified workforce hailing from multiple cities. At Incusaze, we are driven to empower organizations to expand their real estate portfolio by widening their city base reach through managed spaces. Since the pandemic outbreak, companies have been downsizing their headquarters and operating in a hybrid model. While that works for some industries, others are looking at alternate ways to stabilize in-office operations. This is where managed workspaces and flexible spaces offer a sign of relief to business owners."
